

fringeNYC<sup>SM</sup>

WHAT THEY SAID ABOUT

"Operating virtually around-the-clock, the festival has with uncanny swiftness put its stamp on late-summer theatergoing in New York. Gathering little-known theater companies from around the world for 12 days, the event is evolving into a kind of Olympics of performance art, an oasis invigorated by the boundless energy of an eclectic band of writers and actors in the normally parched weeks before Labor Day, when the theater season just begins to rev up. "

Peter Marks

THE NEW YORK TIMES

"The Behemoth is Back! The Enormous and ambitious Fringe Festival returns for another year of off-off delights."

TIME OUT NY

"One of the best bets around town is in the wide variety of events offered by the New York Fringe Festival. This is a cornucopia of productions and performing artists emerging from the world's best theater companies. "

Liz Smith

THE NEW YORK POST / NEWSDAY

"Alles Deutet darauf hin, dass sich das New Yorker Fringe Festival in seinem zweiten Jahr bereits als wichtigster Treffpunkt für alternatives Theater in Amerika."

NEUE ZÜRCHER ZEITUNG

"The New York International Fringe Festival just completed its second year, but already it's become a permanent institution. This festival generated more buzz, money, and attendance than last year's premiere effort"

BACKSTAGE

"There are 8 million stories in Gotham, and a good half of them have been playing this week in the second-annual New York International Fringe Festival - our own little equivalent to Sundance - which highlights the best and brightest productions that your parents would probably not wish to see."

HX MAGAZINE

"THE BIGGEST, BOLDEST, MOST BENEFICENT THEATER EVENT"

PAPER

"If someone tells you that nothing goes on in New York City during the dog days of summer, spit in his eye."

FLATIRON NEWS

"The festival could be the season's jumper cables"

Peter Marks

THE NEW YORK TIMES

"How's that for one day's outing at the Fringe Festival? I'm going back for more. See you there, I hope."

THE STAR-LEDGER

"wooly and hyperkinetic"

DAILY NEWS

"A continuous bombardment of unusual, innovative, high-energy theatre"

NYTHEATRE.COM

"Ground zero of the performing arts, offering up untried and not-so-true theater for the truly adventurous."

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL

"Looking for a terrific bargain theatrical? Look no further than the Lower East side, where the second New York International Fringe Festival offers nearly 150 attractions spread out among 17 little theaters"

THE STAR-LEDGER

"Don't miss it!"

SIMON SAYS